Re: Letter of Intent — Conditional Expression of Interest in Thinkedin

To Whom It May Concern,

This letter sets out our expression of interest in Thinkedin, a professional network intelligence platform that enables users to query their LinkedIn connections and message history using natural language, surfacing relevant contacts by role, location, industry and context.

Having reviewed the product, we believe Thinkedin addresses a genuine and recurring operational need within our organisation. The ability to intelligently surface relevant professional connections across large networks represents a meaningful improvement over existing tools.

Our intent to purchase is conditional upon the implementation of the following capability:

Team Network Aggregation: the ability for multiple members within the same organisation to combine their individual professional networks into a unified, shared super-network that is collectively queryable, allowing any team member to search across the combined connections of all participating colleagues in a single query.

Subject to the above being delivered to a satisfactory standard, we are expressing willingness to evaluate Thinkedin and consider a paid subscription upon general availability. This letter does not constitute a binding commitment of any kind and no financial obligation arises from its signing.

Yours sincerely,

Signature:
